Milwaukee Mayoral Campaign Attracting Widespread Publicity

The clippings shown here represent a portion of the amazing amount of publicity being garnered in the current "Jones for Mayor" election campaign in Milwaukee.

Unit Leader Anthony Schmitt meanwhile reports a motorcade is being planned to advertise Jones' candidacy along city streets with brilliant black-on-orange signs atop the NS vehicles. In the remaining weeks of the campaign, the unit is expected to distribute thousands upon thousands of specially-designed campaign brochures.

Further details on the race will be given in coming issues of the NS BULLETIN.

10 Drop Support of Nazi

About 10 persons who signed nomination papers for Arthur J. Jones, the Nazi candidate for mayor of Milwaukee, have asked the City Election Commission to remove their names, the commission's secretary, Thaddeus C. Stawicki, said Monday.

Stawicki said the callers told him that when they signed, they did not know that Jones, the candidate of the National Socialist White People's Party, was a Nazi.

Jones has filed more than the 1,500 signatures required to place him on the ballot for the Feb. 17 primary.

Since the nomination papers have been notorized and filed with the commission they cannot be tampered with, Stawicki said. He said he told the callers they could write letters explaining their second thoughts. The letters would have no legal effect, however.

Arthur J. Jones

The calls came after the signers saw Jones on television standing in front of a swastika or after they read about his party affiliation, Stawicki said.

Attached to the file Monday were letters from three signers disavowing support for Jones and nazism. Their names, however, remained on the papers.

One woman said she signed without questioning Jones' political affiliation. Another said she was careless. A man said he had wanted to sign for a candidate opposing Mayor Maier and had been erroneously assured by the person circulating the papers that Jones was neither a Nazi nor a Communist.

Nazi Rips Mayor, Newspapers

The mayoral candidate of the National Socialist White Peoples (Nazi) Party charged Wednesday that newspapers and Mayor Maier were trying to stop the "one candidate who stands in the way" of Maier's re-election in 1976.

Arthur J. Jones said news stories Tuesday and Wednesday saying that people who had signed his nomination papers were upset when they learned he was a Nazi was part of an organized campaign jointly engineered by the Journal Company and Maier.

About 17 people who signed Jones' nomination papers have asked the City Election Commission to remove their names. This is not possible because the papers have been notarized. Jones, however, has more than 1,500 signatures, thus qualifying him for the Feb. 17 primary.

Seven people told the Election Commission Wednesday that they were upset when they learned that they had signed nomination papers for a Nazi. Ten people had complained earlier in the week.

Employes of the Election Commission office said the callers were disturbed because Jones was not identified as a Nazi. However, Jones said Wednesday that when asked, his circulators had told people that he was a member of the National Socialist White Peoples Party.

Jones said he had to have the national Nazi office in Arlington, Va., print his campaign literature because local firms had refused to print a swastika.

The mayoral election is nonpartison, and candidates' party affiliations do not appear on the ballot.

Know Your Candidate

Some of those people who signed nomination papers for the Nazi Party candidate for mayor of Milwaukee are now angry and distressed, claiming they did not know the candidate's affiliation. Several tried to have their names stricken from lists filed with the City Election Commission. It cannot be done. Those signatures, whether given in knowledge or ignorance, are cast in the equivalent of concrete.

Considering the number of signatures needed for a candidate's name to be placed on the ballot, it is inevitable that strangers will be asked to sign nomination papers. But too often, people casually comply, knowing little or nothing of the person seeking their support.

Some now realize that their signatures may be construed as endorsement of this candidate's personal or party politics. That, in fact, is what nomination papers are all about — establishing that a candidate has a modicum of public support. The distress of those who supported a Nazi without knowing it should prompt everyone to make sure that a signature says what its owner intends.

Nazi Gets On Ballot, As Endorsers Tricked

By HYMAN CHESTER

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (P-O) — Dozens of persons complained to the City Election Commission that they had been tricked or didn't know what they were doing when they signed nomination papers that put an avowed Nazi into the primary election for mayor.

The commission shrugged off their complaints, however.

When the candidate, Arthur J. Jones, had the nearly 2,000 signatures notarized and filed with the commission, he won a place on the ballot. State law provides no means for withdrawal, the commission secretary said.

JONES BECOMES one of five little known candidates who will oppose Milwaukee's nationally recognized mayor, Henry Maier. There is practically no chance that any one of them will even come close to giving him a race on Feb. 17.

Jones needed only 1,500 signatures to enter the primary. His usually uniformed Nazi party colleagues got the signatures easily by standing on street corners in civilian clothing and accosting passersby for their signatures.

Although Jones had been identified previously in the newspapers and on television as a Nazi who hoped to run for mayor, signers of the nomination papers didn't seem to recognize the name. The papers listed his principles as "Independent" in the short blank space available. The election will be nonpartisan.

AFTER the announcement that he had filed, the signatures were placed on the public record, along with the petition statement that the signers would "support" the nominee.

Several of the complainers wrote to the commission trying to disavow their signatures, expressing shock and anxiety over what they had done. Others interviewed by newsmen were equally upset.

One man said he had simply been looking for someone other than the mayor to vote for. Others said that those who circulated the petition misrepresented the candidate, giving a variety of answers to questions about Jones' background, but failing to state that he was a Nazi.

A MAN AND WIFE said they were told that he belonged to no party, and that he was not a socialist or communist. A young woman said Jones himself circulated one petition, but he avoided answering her questions about party principles.

Nazi Candidate Angers Signers

Discovery that Arthur J. Jones was a Nazi brought shocked and angry reactions Wednesday from many of the persons who signed his nomination papers for mayor of Milwaukee.

In a telephone survey conducted by The Milwaukee Sentinel, 57 persons contacted said they did not know him to be a Nazi when they signed his nomination papers.

Of those, 48 said they would not have signed had they known, eight were undecided and one said he still would have signed.

The survey was made after it was learned that several persons had asked the City Election Commission to remove their names from the nomination papers.

However, Thaddeus C. Stawicki, commission secretary, said that the papers could not be changed once notarized and filed with the commission.

Jones has filed more than the 1,500 signatures required to place his name on the Feb. 17 primary ballot.

Most persons contacted Wednesday said they signed without seeking much information about the candidate.

Several, however, said they questioned the person circulating the petition about Jones' platform and his party affiliation but were told nothing about his being a Nazi.

Miss Sandra L. Kaliebe, an employe at a downtown department store, said that when she asked Jones his party affiliation, he replied there was no need to state party affiliation because it was a nonpartisan election.

"He completely avoided any mention of any affiliation with the Nazi Party," she said.

Miss Kaliebe said she had just completed a letter to the election commission disclaiming support of Jones.

A man who asked that his name not be used said he and his wife had asked whether the candidate was a socialist or communist and were told no.

"My wife and I did ask whom he is associated with an he said no particular party — they lied to us," the man said.

Robert A. Smit, 2523 W. Burnham St., who signed along with his wife, said that while they were outaware that Jones was a Nazi, he does have a right to run for mayor.

"I think he should have let it be known he was a member of the Nazi Party, though," Smit said. "Whether it's me or someone else, he would have gotten 1,500 signatures, though. When it comes out on the ballot, he will be listed as a member of the Nazi Party and he doesn't have a chance of getting elected."

[No party affiliation shows on the mayoral ballot.]

Joseph Markle, 3225 S. 48th St., said he signed because he was looking for someone other than Mayor Maier to vota for, but that he was sorry he did so.

"I'm very upset," commented Caroline M. Majewski, 3150 S. 12th St.

Regretful Signers

The embarrassment suffered by some city residents who unwittingly signed the mayoral nomination papers of Nazi Arthur J. Jones could have some beneficial effects in the community.

The signatures are required to assure that a prospective candidate has sufficient support to warrant having his name placed on the ballot. Instead, they are more often given as a means of getting rid of a stranger at the door or to accommodate a friendly bartender. After the disclosure about Jones, perhaps this important first step in the election process will be treated with the seriousness it deserves.

In any case, it's a good idea to take advantage of the chance to talk to anyone who might be elected to public office when one has the chance. Too often, the dialog with the constituency ends once the candidate becomes an officeholder.

Make Your Reservations for the Congress Now!

All National Socialists are urged to make their plans now to attend the Seventh Congress of the National Socialist White Peoples Party in Washington, D.C. this Fourth of July weekend. On the 200th Birthday of the United States, there will be no better way to celebrate this Bicentennial event.

As the Washington area will be very crowded over the Fourth of July, we urge all comrades who already know they will be attending to send in their $20 deposit, so we can reserve room accommodations for them. (Please specify whether double or single, and which nights' occupancy are desired.)

Minneapolis National Socialists Attack Busing

NS comrades in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area have taken another big jump toward becoming an authorized Party unit with a recent interview of Local Organizer Mike Rumble by the St. Paul Dispatch, one of the Twin Cities' largest daily newspapers.

Specifically, Comrade Rumble voiced the Party's opposition to forced busing which is due to hit St. Paul schools in coming months, and pledged to conduct Party activities aimed at opposing the race-mixing efforts.

All Official Supporters in the Minneapolis area may contact Organizer Rumble for participation in upcoming events at: Box 12223 – Minneapolis, MN 55412.

City school integration plan attacked by Nazis

Two organizers of the American Nazi party said today they object to the plan to integrate St. Paul schools, declaring that "integration will mongrelize the white race."

Michael Rumble and Richard Person, both of Minneapolis, said they intend to put on demonstrations against busing and against school integration and will distribute Nazi literature to school children near the schools which will be involved in the busing program.

Rumble and Person said Howard Casmey, state commissioner of education, and George Young, superintendent of St. Paul public schools, are "offering up our children to race pollution" by advocating busing.

THE SELF-STYLED Nazis, wearing black boots, pants, leather jackets, and armband swastikas, exhibited samples of hate literature which advocates sending all blacks back to Africa. The literature also threatens to "do some killing" of Jews and blacks and suggested that school buses "might be. . . going up in smoke all over the country." Other brochures called for "boating, not busing" in typical hate language.

The pair did not say when the demonstrations would take place, but indicated it would be as soon as the weather is not quite so cold.

The name of the organization was changed to the National Socialist White Peoples party in 1967, but the two organizers said it is still known by its former name, the American Nazi party.

Communist Rag Admits NSWPP "Greatest Threat" to Red Traitors

In unmistakably clear and direct language, the Communist Party of America came out recently with a vicious anti-Party article in the November 1975 issue of its so-called theoretical journal, Political Affairs. Under the headline, "The Fascist Danger in U.S.," the chief Communist theoretician and editor of CPUSA's Jewish Affairs magazine, Hyman Lumer, quotes General Secretary Gus Hall, "We must keep an eye on how, in the U.S. in the 1970's, fascism can come to power." Comments Lumer: "The forces of right-wing reaction and fascism have become increasingly active and aggressive. The past several years have, to be sure, produced a distinct shift to the Right. There is imminent threat of a fascist takeover in the United States today. It is in this sense that we may speak of a heightened threat of fascism and of a sharpening of the struggle against it."

To whom does this Communist-Jewish traitor accredit the greatest potential for fulfilling this grave warning? "Most extreme in its fanaticism is the National Socialist White People's Party. This is a gang of uniformed Swastikaed (sic) hoodlums spouting the crudest Nazism." The Jew goes on to explain how the NSWPP is "minute in numbers but frequently in evidence where struggles for democratic rights are taking place," and he goes on to mention the Party's organizing efforts against busing in Boston.

He tries unsuccessfully to discredit the fundamentally sound appeal of National Socialism. "Fascism is able to attract the masses because it appeals to their most urgent needs and demands." Then addressing himself to the role played by those of his own kind, he naively writes: "Jews are, it is true, in the main no longer among the most impoverished sectors of the population. (sic!) They have in growing measure entered into white-collar, professional and business occupations and have left the urban Jewish ghettos for suburban communities (sometimes referred to as 'gilded ghettos'). There is a Jewish big bourgeoisie, reaching into the top circles of finance capital."

Even though he immediately attempts to smudge out of the logical conclusion of this statement by claiming "Jewish 'workers' suffer exploitation and discrimination in employment, housing, education and other respects," no amount of verbal maneuvering can wipe out his own fingering of the real root of the social problem – Jews.

Returning to his original theme, again quoting Hall, ". . .There is no basis for complacency because as shadows follow substance, so danger stalks at the heels of new (Communist) advances."

Obviously these Reds realize so much more than even many National Socialists the infinite power inherent in a dedicated, near-fanatical organization of determined idealists, as embodied in the National Socialist movement. As the Leader put down in His book, "World history is made by minorities when this minority of number embodies the majority of will and determination."

Annual Hess vigil Draws Strong Public Interest – Ignored by Press

On 19, 20 and 21 December, the NSWPP sponsored an around-the-clock vigil in front of the White House demanding the release of Rudolf Hess. During the 60-hour plus demonstration, National Socialists stood with a huge sign bearing a picture of Hess with the wording, "1941-1975: WAS PEACE A CRIME? – FREE RUDOLF HESS!" Passersby were given literature explaining the facts of Hess' imprisonment – facts which are unavailable to them in the liberal-democratic monoply press.

In spite of the biting cold, the vigil was seen by a surprisingly large number of people. The large Christmas tree at the annual Yule Pageant, just 100 yards from the vigil site, drew significant crowds which passed near the huge sign.

The local and national press, however, managed to blanket out all news of the demonstration. The press was undoubtedly caught "looking the other way" by many people who passed the vigil and expected to see a write-up on it in the Washington papers. But in West Germany, the obviously damning implications of the brutal treatment of Hess by the Soviets and their wartime allies could not go unnoticed as thousands marched for his release there recently.

In many cities across the country, National Socialists made a special effort to call public attention to the injustice of Hess' imprisonment through literature distributions. In some localities, Party units conducted Hess vigils of their own.

What's YOUR Question?

Q. Will the Party run a Presidential candidate this year?

A. No. The Party does not plan to field a candidate for President this year. A serious presidential race requires a more extensive state and local organizational structure than we now have. It also takes hundreds of thousands and millions of dollars, which we do not now have. For these reasons, a National Socialist presidential campaign would be premature and unrealistic at this time.

Although we will not be running a candidate for President in 1976, during the next several years we will be concentrating on elections on the local level. We must start out small in our bid for public office, eventually working our way up toward putting on the kind of nationwide campaign which at this time is impractical.

In Milwaukee the Movement is already reaching an audience of literally millions – about two million in the city and outlying regions – by intensive campaigning. In the coming months, the Party hopes to enter as many similar local contests as possible.

It's not whether we win or lose at the present time, but that we put out propaganda and gain the invaluable experience and training upon which we will be depending later on. As the outcome of the local races begins to reflect increased unrest and discontent with a corrupt and senile System, a proper candidate will be selected and, as an uncompromising National Socialist, run for Chief Executive.

In anticipation of that great day, members and supporters are asked to assist Party candidates in local contests in every way possible.
